

Approaches to the African Novel Third Edition

This second edition is a child of necessity, and here the approach to practical criticism of literary works lies in emphasizing the specific artistic principles and reasons governing the construction of each work's literary merit. This has partly involved searching for the key to the structure and meaning of the novel discussed, a search that in each case leads to the discovery of the form of the work. Three new essays are added, two expectedly on Achebe (the father of the African novel) and one on Mongo Beti's Mission to Kala. Achebe's Things Fall Apart as an Igbo national epic has evoked a spate of reactions from critics of African literature. The essay on Arrow of God whose structure and meaning has been largely avoided by other critics is included here for further airing. And Chinua Achebe's works deserve more attention in critical discussions such as this, than any other works of fiction by an African writer. For gender balance, the essay on Flora Nwapa has been added. And, since the novels discussed in this volume exclusively are on the African literature south of the Sahara, the last essay on Peter Abrahams comes in to round out this collection of essays with a study of a South African writer, for geographical balance.
