

At the End of the Street in the Shadow: Orson Welles and the City

The films of Orson Welles inhabit the spaces of cities?from Americas industrializing midland to its noirish borderlands, from Europes medieval fortresses to its Kafkaesque labyrinths and postwar rubbleescapes. His movies take us through dark streets to confront nightmarish struggles for power, the carnivalesque and bizarre, and the shadows and light of human character.This ambitious new study explores Welless vision of cities by following recurring themes across his work, including urban transformation, race relations and fascism, the utopian promise of cosmopolitanism, and romantic nostalgia for archaic forms of urban culture. It focuses on the personal and political foundation of Welless cinematic cities?the way he invents urban spaces on film to serve his dramatic, thematic, and ideological purposes.The books critical scope draws on extensive research in international archives and builds on the work of previous scholars. Viewing Welles as a radical filmmaker whose innovative methods were only occasionally compatible with the commercial film industry, this volume examines the filmmakers original vision for butchered films, such as The Magnificent Ambersons (1942) and Mr. Arkadin (1955), and considers many projects the filmmaker never completed?an immense shadow oeuvre ranging from unfinished and unreleased films to unrealized treatments and screenplays.
